

DigHT 315, Winter 2024

Write a short letter to future students in this class (or other classes I teach). Please tell them what you think is most important for being successful with the assignments, the reading, the class, or (let's be honest) dealing with me.

For him: He's cool. In a weird way. He cares more about helping students learn skills than he is about grades. I really like this--to me, skills are what I'm here for.

For the assignments: Be sure to read (and reread) the assignment sheets. They are very detailed, which is only helpful if you read them. If you don't pay attention, you might miss a requirement.

For the readings: Keep on top of the reading--it's a lot and it can get dense. Be sure to make notes of the reading to refer to during class, cause he will bring it up.
